Can I migrate from my existing Avaya solution to Avaya Cloud Office today?

Yes. The Avaya Cloud Office Service Web interface makes user setup easy and includes the ability to define templates and groups to automate much of the work. If you need additional support you can always engage Avaya Professional Services.

For an existing Avaya customer, what would the user experience be?

Avaya Cloud Office has been designed from the ground up to be simple for both administrators and users. Using the Avaya Cloud Office Service Web, Avaya users can personalize their experience including greetings, personal contacts, phone button configurations and hunt group settings – the intuitive interface makes it easy for users to get exactly the experience they want. For day-to-day activities users will find the common interface easy to use across their devices with many actions, like making a call or joining a meeting available with a single click or touch.

How would I import my personal contacts in Avaya Cloud Office?

If you have a long list of contacts, you can import that list to your Avaya Cloud Office account using a CSV file. This is very convenient because you can add all the contacts at the same time, instead of manually creating a new contact for each person you want to add.

How would I import my voicemail greetings in Avaya Cloud Office?

You can import your greetings to your Avaya Cloud Office account by uploading your greeting file from your existing Avaya solution. This is very convenient because you can add your existing greetings, instead of re-recording a new greeting.

How would customers get started today?

The Avaya Cloud Office Basic Implementation package is available today and has been specifically designed to get customers started quickly. It is ideally suited for customers with up to 50 direct lines, all located on a single site. It includes:

- Access to an implementation advisor over the phone to guide you through the Avaya Cloud Office setup.

- Up to three one-hour sessions with the advisor and access to online admin training to administer the system.
- The ability for customers to create custom roles, call flows, and user profiles based on the training.

As noted above, Avaya Professional Services is always available to provide additional support, whatever your implementation or integration requirements happen to be.
