

We are thrilled to share this important announcement with you.

Today, we announced the closing of the acquisition of Westcon-Comstor Americas and the investment in Westcon-Comstor International. We are very excited about this transaction and the combined capabilities and benefits it will bring, enabling you to leverage the strengths of two great companies. We are also excited about the new solutions we will be able to provide to you as we jointly execute on the new opportunities that lie ahead.

Both organizations are extremely well-aligned in vision, strategy, and culture. We view this as an opportunity to enhance our collective capabilities, solutions, and the value that we bring to you. With SYNNEX being an investor in Westcon-Comstor International, we will also maintain a seamless global customer and vendor experience for partners that need these services.

As we work through integration, you are our top priority. We value our partnership and remain 100% committed to enhancing your capabilities and performance. The team supporting you today, including executives, management and staff, will not change. We will continue business as usual for a period of time as we integrate our teams.

Be on the lookout, as we will follow up with more about access to our enhanced product and service offerings and will continue to keep you updated throughout this process.

If you have any questions, feel free to reach out to your existing relationships at Westcon-Comstor or SYNNEX.

Thank you for your continued partnership.

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "K. Murai".

Kevin Murai

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "P. Larocque".

Peter Larocque

A handwritten signature in blue ink, appearing to read "Andrew Warren".

Andrew Warren

A handwritten signature in blue ink, appearing to read "Otavio Lazarini Barbosa".

Otavio Lazarini Barbosa